That Was Justice White's Decision in Harlem Court.

Edward Smith, who is superintending the building of a row of houses at One Hundred and Sixteenth street and Madison Avenue, was complainant in the Harlem court this morning against Francis C. Zeigler, Walking Delegate of the Public Cartmen's Union, whom he charged with conspiracy.

A GOOD MOVE.

the cartmen who were hauling brick to the building yesterday afternoon, and the bricklayers also quit work. Work was brought to a standstill, and Smith caused Ziegler to be subpoenaed to appear before the Court today. He should not be held up.

Ziegler said Smith had owed a union man a sum of money since 1890, and he advised other union men to leave the building. Smith said he was not a union man, but he had a perfect right to quit if they wanted to, and Smith said that he would not pay the bricklayers until they returned to work.

"I am," said Smith.

— "Well, that's your kokoon," said the Justice. "There is nothing against Ziegler that I can see. He is discharged."

Smith left the court, threatening to appeal to a higher court.

tion against making pet of one of them.
"My new acquisition, 'Boy,' insists on being petted, and his enticing ways are irresistible. He is always tethered in front of my tent, with a rope long enough to give him considerable liberty, and he took advantage of it the very first day to come into the tent and make it appear

"He comes up to me and puts down his head to have his ears rubbed, and if I do not attend to him at once, or if I cease attending to him, he gives me a gentle

"I dine outside the tent, and he is tied to my chair and waits with wonderful patience for the odds and ends, only occasionally saying to me, 'Do not trust my face remind you that he is there.' His friendly snuffle is the only sound he makes. He does not know how to fight or that teeth and heels are for any other
